CIPD Level 5 Associate Diploma in People Management

This apprenticeship is one of the few programmes requiring an externally accredited qualification. The CIPD Level 5 Associate Diploma in People Management is integrated into the apprenticeship.

This means that you will gain both the Level 5 People Professional Apprenticeship and the CIPD Level 5 Associate Diploma in People Management certificates upon completing this programme.

This apprenticeship aligns with the Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development for Associate Member

Each module requires an assignment to be completed that is set by CIPD

Each module has comprehensive learning material that is accessed online.

Learners can access over 30 online live tutor led classes.

Learners are supported through one-to-one coaching.

What's the cost?

If your organisation pays the Apprenticeship Levy, your funds can be used for this programme. If you don't pay the Levy, the government will contribute up to 95% of the costs.

When can I enrol?

We have a rolling programme so that you can enrol at any time. The process is straightforward, and although it is a funded programme, there is very little paperwork.

Am I too old for an apprenticeship?

Absolutely not! There is no age limit for an apprenticeship programme, and even if you have been to university and worked for several years, you can still enrol.

How can I juggle my job and these studies?

Because it's an apprenticeship, your employer must give you time to attend our online classes and work on assignments during work hours.

What else do I need to learn?

Before the final endpoint assessment, you must have English and Maths at GCSE grade C or 4 or above or functional skills at Level 2.

What is End Point Assessment?

This is the last stage of the apprenticeship and earns you the certificate. For this programme, you must produce and deliver a presentation to an independent assessor and have a professional discussion underpinned by a portfolio you will create during the course.
